

Here are some articles and videos that share similar themes and ideas to the one you've :

1. "The Wretched of the Earth" by Frantz Fanon - This seminal work analyzes the psychological effects of colonization and the process of decolonization, emphasizing the importance of revolutionary change and the role of violence in achieving liberation. Fanon discusses the interconnectedness of national liberation and social justice.
2. "Empire and Revolution: The Political Life of L.R. James" by C. L. R. James - This biography highlights James's contributions to Marxist thought while living in colonial Trinidad. It explores the connections between anti-colonial movements and socialist ideologies, echoing the themes of interconnected struggles.
3. "Decolonization: A Short History" by Jan C. Jansen and Jürgen Osterhammel - This book provides a concise overview of the decolonization process around the world, examining the interplay between local struggles and global political ideologies, including socialism and anti-imperialism.
4. "The Global Cold War: Third World Interventions and the Making of Our Times" by Odd Arne Westad - This work looks at the Cold War through the lens of third-world countries, demonstrating how decolonization and international socialism were entangled in global conflicts and ideological battles.
5. "Colonialism/Postcolonialism" by Anne McClintock - This video critically examines the impact of colonial histories on modern political movements, including the relationship between national identity, decolonization, and leftist ideologies.
6. "The Darker Nations: A People's History of the Third World" by Vijay Prashad - This book charts the history of the Non-Aligned Movement and how anti-colonial struggles were linked to broader socialist aspirations, advocating for a global perspective on these interconnected movements.
7. "Nationalism and the State" by James D. Fearon and David D. Laitin - This academic article investigates the role of nationalism in decolonization and proposes a framework for understanding the motivations and methodologies of national liberation movements in a global context.

These videos can help deepen your understanding of the connections between decolonization, nationalism, and international socialism, as well as the historical context that shaped these movements.