

Here are a few articles that explore similar themes and topics as the video regarding campaign financing, political insurrections, dark money, and the impact of corporate contributions on democracy:

1. "The Money Behind Political Insurgency" - The Atlantic

This article examines the role of financial backing in political movements, including insurrections, and discusses how certain funding sources can shape the trajectory and success of these movements.

2. "Dark Money's Grip on American Politics" - ProPublica

This investigative piece delves into the concept of dark money in U.S. elections, exploring how undisclosed donations affect political outcomes and public policy. The article provides insights into the sources of such funding and the implications for democracy.

3. "Corporate Contributions and the Erosion of Democracy" - The Nation

This article explores the impact of corporate political contributions on the democratic process, highlighting specific cases where corporate funding has undermined electoral integrity and accountability.

4. "Campaign Finance: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly" - Pew Research Center

This report evaluates the state of campaign financing in the U.S., discussing the rise of super PACs, dark money groups, and the implications for political transparency and accountability.

5. "A Historical Overview of Corporate Political Financing" - The New Yorker

This piece provides a historical perspective on corporate political contributions in the U.S., drawing parallels with other historical events and warning about the dangers of unchecked corporate influence on politics.

6. "Regulating Dark Money: The Need for Reform" - Brennan Center for Justice

This article discusses the call for campaign finance reform, emphasizing the importance of transparency in political spending and the role of organizations advocating for regulatory changes to combat dark money in elections.

7. "The Corporate Response to January 6 and its Implications" - The Guardian

This article analyzes the aftermath of the January 6th attack on the Capitol, focusing on corporate reactions and commitments to campaign finance reforms, while highlighting the contradictions in corporate pledges.

These articles collectively explore the interconnectedness of campaign financing, corporate sponsorship, political insurrection, and the need for transparency in electoral politics, akin to the themes discussed in your video.