

Based on the video , here are 5 key points:

1. Prioritizing Equity in Schools: The video emphasizes the need for schools to prioritize equity, defining what that means and supporting marginalized students who have historically not had full access to the curriculum. This includes creating a vision that can lead to a redesign of how schools operate.
2. Critical Consciousness: School leaders are encouraged to develop critical consciousness, understanding historical oppression and the ongoing impact it has on marginalized students, particularly in the context of race in the US education system.
3. Cultural Responsive Leadership: Leaders are urged to move towards cultural responsive leadership, creating welcoming environments in schools that affirm and support all students, especially those from minoritized backgrounds or living in poverty.
4. Community Connections and Support: Schools need to build community connections both within the school and with the surrounding community. This involves recognizing and respecting the histories and backgrounds of the people within these communities and ensuring a supportive environment for all students.
5. Resource Allocation and Sustainability: Ensuring equitable distribution of resources in schools is critical for sustainability. This includes not just monetary resources but also factors like teacher quality, belief in students, and efforts to create inclusive learning environments that support the potential of all students, especially those who have been historically marginalized.
